

SCOTTISH URBAN PATTERNS

Scale reference: Inverness
Inverness High Street also East-West in orientation but is somewhat truncated, limited by the river.

Scale reference: Elgin
Elgin has a very clear bow shape which proves to be a good response to the sun. The street widens to create pleasant public spaces at the School Square, Main Cross and the Small Cross.

Scale reference: Linlithgow
Linlithgow also has the bow pattern but meanders as a response to the topography of the site. This meandering makes for a wind-protected and pleasant walk as the space opens and closes along its length.
